TELEGRAPH CONSOLIDATION DEFEND-ED BY THE COMPANIES.

was finid of Rufus Hatch's Suit by Gen Brosvenor P. Lowrey in Court Yesterday. The argument in the matter of the injunction obtained by Rufus Hatch restraining the proposed consolidation of the telegraph companies was resumed before Judge Barrett in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday. Gen. Vager Swayne concluded his argument on behalf of the American Union Company. He said that Mr. Hatch sought to prevent the stockholders from exercising their right to make the con-solidation. One ground of Mr. Hatch's applica-tion was his own right as a stockholder. This was disposed of by the proof that the proposed agreement was according to law. The sec ground of Mr. Hatch's injunction was that the proposed consolidation was opposed to public policy, on the presumption that it would create a monopoly. No proof was offered that even if all the companies were consolidated, other companies would not be formed furnishing other facilities for telegraphic communication. Gen. Swayne quoted from Mr. Hatch's affidavit relating to the transactions in the stock founded on the low price of telegraph stock before the news of the proposed consolidation, and asked who were the parties who were op erating in telegraph stock? He said that Mr. Hatch and his friends had been engaged in eating down the stock of the Western Union beating down the stock of the Western Union Company, and that the action of the directors of the Western Union in purchasing the stock was in the interest of the stockholders. He said that Mr. Hatch's position was simply this; "Buy me out; if you don't there will be trouble." Everett P. Wheeler made the argument on behalf of the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company. He called attention to the fact that so far Mr. Hatch stood alone in his attempt to prevent the proposed action of the telegraph companies. As the great body of the stockholders were in favor of the agreement, he thought Mr. Hatch's interest was too small to justify the interference of the Court. The whole history of the case showed that the injunction was obtained by Mr. Hatch to obtain an illegal profit for his atock, and to use the mandate of the Court to aid him. He denied that Mr. Hatch had a right to appear for the people of the State.

Mr. Wheeler also contrasted the allegation of Mr. Hatch's complaint as to the object of those who formed the American Union Telegraph Company. It assemed that they had intended to do something for the public good rather than to make money for themselves. If appeared, however, that Mr. Tinker had changed his mind, and had left the company.

"Yes; be tinkered it up with Mr. Schell," sughowever, that Mr. Tinker had changed his mind, and had left the company.

"Yes; het inkered it up with Mr. Scheil," suggested Mr. Fulerton. [Laughter.]

Mr. Wheeler next referred to the allegations of Mr. Hatch relative to the inflation of the stock of the Western Union, and said it appeared to be asserted that the bubble was to be constructed of air and water.

"That is your word and not ours, to call it a bubble," said Mr. Sewell.

"It was auggested to me by seeing my chil-

"It was suggested to me by seeing my chil-dren making bubbles yesterday," replied Mr. Wheeler.

bubble, "said Mr. Sewell.

"It was suggested to me by seeing my children making bubbles yesterday," replied Mr. Wheeler.

"I suppose they were getting up a brief for you," interposed Mr. Fullerton. [Laughter.]

"Well, children sometimes build better than they know," retorted Mr. Wheeler.

In conclusion, Mr. Wheeler defended the proposed consolidation as in accordance with the spirit of the age, which is in the line of great enterprises, instead of the old-fashioned existence of fragmentary and individual atoms. He recalled the time when the interests of the New York Central and Hudson River failroads conflicted and passengers were obliged to change cars at Albany. He commented on the great value of the inventions owned by the different companies and the advantage of bringing all these inventions under one management. He said that the fold maxim that competition is the life of trade was akin to the other maxim that the natural state of man is a state of war. In opposition to those ancient maxims he would put the thought that "Face hath her victories no less renowned than war," and that "In union there is strength." He urgod that the public interests can best be subserved by a combination rather than a war of interests.

Grosvenor P. Lowrey made the argument for the Western Union Company preliminary to that to be made by ex-Judge Porter. He said the company stood upon its legal rights clearly defined. They claimed that all the preliminary steps thus far taken, up to the time they were stopped by injunction, were strictly in accordance with the forms prescribed by law. He decided all the allegations of conspiracy, and said that there had been nothing furtive and no eircumioution, but all the steps had been marked out by the statute. He defended the terms of the agreement as within the definition of a sale or conversance of telegraph property. It made no difference that the price was to be paid to the at ckholders directly. He held that the, transaction would benefit all the parties concerned. He denied that there stock of other companies bought, and other real property.

Judge Barrett—Has it been enjoined from increasing its stock?

Mr. Lowey replied by reading the injunction restraining the Western Union Company from increasing its stock.

Mr. Sewell said that was a mistake, and Judge Barrett said the original order contained the name of the American Union Company only. It was then conceded that the use of the name of the said that the use of the same of the American Union in the injunction was a sopyist's mistake.

The argument will be continued to-day by exJudge Porter and ex-Judge Dillon for the companies, and by Mr. Fullerton for Mr. Hatch.

SALE NOW GOING ON

For the Next Thirty Days. Having bought heavily from several manufacturers at forced sales, and also having employed all hands in my own manufactories during the winter, an immense stock has accumulated, which I have decided to dispose of at about 40 per cent. less than the goods could at present be manufactured for. These goods are in the latest styles, durable, and cannot be procured for the prices now offered at any other establishment in the country. During the last month I invested $100,000 in Carpets.

Part of these are Imported and part American manufacture, pronounced by good judges to be the best bargains ever obtained in this city. It is absolutely necessary to dispose of the above, and they will be sold at about one-half the usual price.

73 and 75 Bowery, near Canal st. METROPOLITAN HOTEL

The Public is informed that the fire at this Hotel. which, unfortunately, nearly destroyed the Beautiful Dining Hall, will not interfere with the Business or the Guests of the House. The original, and formerly the only, Dining Room of the Hotel is not injured in any way, and is ample for all purposes. Guests may rely on every attention as usual. HENRY CLAIR,

Jan. 23, 1881.

Accomplished at last, that which for so many years has baffled all who have undertaken it, viz : a comfortable, easy, and durable Suspender, without harness, rubber, or springs, and suitable for men of every vocation in life. NOT COMPLICATED. AS EASY TO HANDLE AS ANY ORDINARY SUSPENDER.
